

Dr. Harald Gaier

Scientifically proven alternative medicine, paired with orthodox diagnostic tests.

Dr. Gaier is someone who is frequently referred to by others on matters relating to complementary and alternative medical and diagnostic techniques. For six years he served on the Research Committee of the Prince of Wales' Foundation for Integrated Health as a naturopathic physician. Most recently he has held the appointment of Director of Medical Research at two major Clinics in London (The Hale Clinic and The Diagnostic Clinic). His published work includes the Encyclopædic Dictionary of Homœopathy and peer-reviewed papers on gut-related medical research as well as medical economics.

He believes that there are non-orthodox medical treatments for virtually any disorder, which have been shown as successful in hard-science backed, published investigations. He has published reviews regularly on such investigations for the past fourteen years and continue to do so in some of today's leading publications.

He does not dismiss out of hand any traditional therapeutic approach that can, perhaps, not yet be fully explained in terms that accord with Western science.

Fifteen Medical Insurance Companies recognize Dr. Gaier and will pay for his services. Most of these Companies each have a variety of optional policies, and obviously the benefits available to subscribing members under the terms and conditions of the different policies do vary. Patients should be reminded of that. For instance, some will pay for naturopathy and medical herbalism, but not for acupuncture and homoeopathy, or any other such permutation. Some will pay for any alternative medical discipline, but not for medicines or supplements. Some require a referral from their GP, and so on. It would be too complex, to list all the variations under each of the different policy options available from each of the listed companies. Patients ought to check such aspects themselves.
